Lee Price, Salesman For Humm Motor Co., Is Killed in Explosion

Charles Burnett Escapes Serious Injury in Accident

Lee Price, about 45, a salesman for Humm Motor Co., was killed instantly early this afternoon in an explosion behind the Humm garage on East Poplar street.

Price, from Eldorado, was killed when a presumably empty hydraulic fluid barrel exploded, the head of the barrel flying nearly to the Dr. H. J. Raley property, about 75 or 80 feet away.

Escaping serious injury was Charles Burnett, also of Eldorado, another employee of the motor company. Burnett, who was standing by Price alongside the barrel, was burned about the eyes.

The accident occurred at 1:25 p. m., a garage employee said. Burnett told a Daily Register reporter that Price had planned on cutting the drum open to take it home. Burnett said Price started a torch, then said it wasn't hot enough yet. Burnett said he took it and laid it on the barrel and at that moment the blast occurred.

The explosion made a terrific noise, employees said, and soon a crowd of several score was on hand. His body was quickly covered to await the arrival of Coroner Elmer M. Gibbons.

Price, who is well-known throughout the county as an automobile salesman, leaves his wife, Ruby. Several years ago Price lost a hand and part of an arm when the car he was driving was sideswiped by a truck.

About Town

And Country

By TIMOTHEUS T.

Trio from Turkey Visits Forestry Office; Like American People

INTERVIEW: I asked two of the three gentlemen from Turkey yesterday afternoon if they had changed their impression of America and Americans since coming to this country nearly eight months ago, and I received an affirmative answer.

Sadi Binay, 28, did most of the talking, and he spoke for Edip Ozturk, 26, and Mehmet Turan Sahin, 27. All three have bachelor of science degrees in forestry and are here studying our methods of forestry.

And Binay put it this way: "In Turkey we had seen lots of American movies and thought that America was something very glamorous, that everybody and everything here was glamorous. But when we arrived we found out that people here are diligent, hard-working, industrious people and are not like those we saw in the movies."

That gave old Timmo the opportunity to ask Binay who was his favorite movie actress and without hesitation he said: "Ahva Gahdner."

Yep, Ava Gardner it was without a glance toward his wife back in Turkey.

And it was the same answer I received from Ozturk, the single man of the group, Sahin was out of the room at the time. Looks like the brunettes are tops in Turkey.

I talked with the trio in the office of Ed Lee, Shawnee National Forest supervisor, in the Harrisburg National bank building.

Binay is an assistant supervisor of Forest Management in the Ministry of Agriculture, Ozturk an engineer at the Forestry Research station in the Ministry of Agriculture, and Sahin a forest ranger in the Ministry of Agriculture.

Their trip is being financed here by the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U. S. Government under the Four-Point program. When they get back they will write reports on what they have learned, giving one to their government, one to this government.

They came here Wednesday night from Carbondale, where they spent several days at the forestry research center, and will be at the Horning hotel until Monday morning, when they'll start their inspection of Shawnee National Forest.

Upon arrival in the United States they went to Syracuse university in New York, where they took courses in forestry. They went from there to the forestry research laboratory at Madison, Wisconsin, for three weeks and then went to Milwaukee, regional headquarters of the U. S. Forest Service.

Next came three weeks in the Missouri National Forest, and research centers at Salem, Mo., and Columbia, Mo. Back to Madison for two weeks followed, and there followed a trip to Monsanto at St. Louis and to Caterpillar and Hyster in Peoria.

It was at this point that they

Mrs. T. Y. Williams Of Equality Dies

Mrs. T. Y. Williams, Equality, died yesterday afternoon in St. Luke's hospital in St. Louis, Mo. The body was returned to Equality this morning and was received by the A. K. Moore funeral home. No funeral plans have been made.

Besides her husband she is survived by a son, William, who is in the grain-buying business in Gallatin county with his father, and a daughter, Mary Lee Williams, who is a teacher at Bloomington.

Youth, Heir to Fortune, Held for Breaking Windows

CHICAGO (AP) — A 17-year-old heir to a 1½-million-dollar fortune, who gets $265 a month from a trust fund, was held today for breaking 29 windows "for a thrill."

The bushy-haired youth, Charles Lynch, is one of three sons of the late John L. Lynch. Police said Charles will share his father's estate with his brothers when he turns 21.

He was arrested with William Ryan, 18, and Frank Bruen, 18, Thursday for the window-breaking spree Tuesday and Wednesday night.

The boys admitted breaking windows in 11 buildings, mostly apartment houses, "for a thrill."

Young Lynch was placed on five years' probation last year for auto theft, police said. He lives with an adult brother.

Police found a shotgun, dagger and home-made blackjack in Lynch's auto.

Gov. Stratton

Favors Increase

In Jobless Pay

Says Will Support

Boost in Payments

By 1955 Legislature

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton today was on the record with support for a boost in Illinois unemployment compensation payments by the 1955 Legislature.

Stratton told newsmen the present compensation ceiling of $27 in Illinois is "rather low under present conditions."

He made the remarks after receiving a delegation of about 20 Mine, Mill and Smelter Union members from Chicago, East St. Louis and Danville during his open house Thursday.

The governor said many other states have raised unemployment compensation payments and the Illinois Legislature should follow suit in 1955.

The union delegation asked Stratton to call a special session of the Legislature immediately to raise the compensation payments to $50 a week with a 52-week maximum for benefits. The maximum period now is 26 weeks.

Stratton said he would call a special session only if it were "clearly shown there is a real emergency."

The governor also said the 1955 Legislature "should give some attention" to the financial problems of Illinois cities.

Without endorsing any specific proposals, Stratton said the Legislature should decide whether cities need a freer hand in money matters.

Pleased by GOP Vote

He said the "people just weren't for" a city sales tax rejected April 13 at Mount Vernon, Cairo, Springfield and Peoria.

Stratton said the Republican party came out of the Illinois primary "with no bitterness and no serious breach." He said he was "pleased" by the Republican vote and said the Democratic statewide primary vote decreased nearly 230,000 from the last off-year election in 1950.

Newly-Wedded French Couple with $300 And Motor Scooter Begin Tour of U. S.

NEW YORK (AP)—A French bride and groom with $300, a few words of English and a motor scooter built for two, set out for California today to find out if it's true that all Americans aren't alike.

Antoine Baud, 28, runs a Paris restaurant with his father and brother. Denise Baud, 20, was a secretary in a Paris jewelry firm until she was married early this month to the man she met when her sister married his brother.

"We have met Americans in Paris," said Denise, who owns the family's bit of English. "We want to know them. We think in Europe all Americans seem the same. Somebody told us in the different states people are different and even speak with different accents."

The tiny brunette bride and her groom, scarcely taller than she, started planning the trip shortly after they became engaged, in January.

The thing they most want to see, said Denise, is "Le Californie—San Francisco—we hear about it—we want to see it all."

Antoine, she said, insisted on Chicago, too, "because of the American movies. He loves very

New, Revamped Journalism Course at SIU

Program Designed For Practical Needs Will Begin Next Fall

A revamped journalism program designed for the practical needs of the press in southern Illinois and for students interested in newspaper work is scheduled for activation at Southern Illinois university next fall. Dr. Howard R. Long, chairman of the SIU Journalism Department, told the Southern Illinois Editorial association meeting at SIU today.

Long said the new program is the result of a national survey of weekly and small daily newspapers and of conferences with publishers in the area. It has been worked out in co-operation with a committee from the SIEA, named by the group's retiring president, Frank M. Bond, publisher of the Dongola Tri-County Record. Howe Morgan, publisher of the Sparta News-Plaindealer, is chairman of the committee which includes W. L. Schmitt, Carlinville; Charles Feirich, Metropolis; and Curtis Small, Harrisburg. Long said funds for a nucleus of necessary equipment have been allocated by the university.

The program calls for offering two types of curricula. One, Long said, will be a two-year vocational curriculum which will be made available through the SIU Vocational-Technical Institute, full-time day school section of the Division of Technical and Adult Education headed by Ernest J. Simon as dean.

This course of study is designed to familiarize students with composing machines, cylinder and platen presses, bindery operations, proofreading, typography, estimating, printing shop management, and related subjects.

The other type of curriculum will be a four-year academic program in four major sequences—news and editorial, community newspapers, educational journalism, and newspaper business management.

The news and editorial curriculum will be designed, among other things, to provide students with practical training in writing news stories for the campus newspaper as well as daily and weekly newspapers.

A curriculum in community newspapers will be designed to equip the student with a practical working knowledge of newspapering on the weekly and small daily, including news and editorial phases as well as a year of shopwork, specialized courses, and field trips.

The educational journalism course of study will follow rather closely the present SIU program for journalism majors and will be designed to prepare students for teaching journalism and supervising elementary and high school newspapers and yearbooks.

In the newspaper business management curriculum the department will be venturing into a comparatively new field in journalism training, Long said. In addition to fundamentals of editing, the course of study will call for considerable work in business administration department accounting and related subjects and will include newspaper promotion, production management, and circulation.

Long told the editors that four required subjects for all students, regardless of which of the four major sequences is selected, will include reporting, copyediting, typography, and law of the press.

They both agreed on Niagara Falls—the long way around. But they learned only Thursday of its honeymoon traditions. They want to see if it looks like the pictures in their school books.

They plan to scout 11,000 miles in three months on the Italian-made Lambretta two-wheeler, armed with a "formidable" sheaf of American road maps, marked up by an American auto club.

If they run out of money, the Bauds agreed, they'll sleep out on warm nights, and hope for a chance to earn some more.

Their route runs south through Washington, Atlanta, Birmingham and New Orleans, across Texas, New Mexico and Arizona to California, back through the Sierra Nevada and Rocky Mountain parks to Chicago and Detroit, into Canada to Niagara Falls and down to New York to board a ship for home.

If it's true what they hear about America, said Denise with a broad grin, "We'll learn the easiest accent."

Pumps Pour Water Into Reservoir As Heavy Rains Swell Creeks

Rainfall Here Measures Only .18 of an Inch

Harrisburg got only .18 inch of rain last night but water was pouring into the reservoir, nevertheless.

Reason was big rains to the west and northwest of here, where some were reported to be of cloudburst proportions.

Electrical storms and wind accompanied the rain in some areas. While Harrisburg was watching dark rolling clouds moving from the southwest, then enjoying a light rainfall, the storm moved into parts of Brushy and Galatia townships. E. E. Ledford reported today that two trees on the Sally Cape Ledford place just south of Harco were blown over. Lightning hit a house owned by Lois Gates and occupied by her son, Carl and wife, near Galatia, knocking a hole in the roof.

All Pumps Working

The official rainfall measured in the village of Galatia was .88 inch, but reports from the Rileville and Benton areas were that cloudbursts hit there.

There was enough rain in the Galatia watershed to swell Middle Fork creek early and all of the CIPS pumps were on by 1 a. m. today, which was a surprise to most persons interested in the pumping operations. Then this morning good water from Bankston creek started joining the Middle Creek flow up near the Congo pumping station.

Since 1 a. m. the CIPS' 14,500 gallon per minute, its 3,000 gallon a minute, and its 750 gallon a minute pumps and the city's 800 to 900 gallon a minute Congo pump were splashing lots of water into the north reservoir.

At 9 a. m., after eight hours of pumping, there was a noticeable difference in the amount of water now in the pond, but there was still plenty of dirt showing in the middle and there was no hope that this could be covered unless more rains came immediately.

Creek Highest Since May

Joe Cox, managing the CIPS pumps, estimated he could run the 14,500 pump to around 11 a. m. and the 3,000 and 750 gallon pumps for several hours afterward. The Congo pump should be able to run for several days.

The water level in Middle Fork had fallen two and a half feet between the time it reached its peak in the early hours and 9 a. m. Cox said that early today Middle Fork reached its highest level since last May.

If Cox is forced to stop the big pump at 11 a. m. because there isn't enough water in the creek for it to operate, approximately 11,400,000 gallons of water will have been pumped into the reservoir at that hour.

Stassen Supports Aid

But Foreign Aid Chief Harold E. Stassen told a news conference he will continue to support the Indian aid program. He said he and other officials will be prepared to discuss this country's policy toward India when the aid request is presented to Congress.

Stassen said the United States as a free world leader must be able to respect different points of view within the other free nations as to the best means of achieving peace.

State Department officials, meanwhile disclosed that an official U. S. request for permission for the Indochina flights to cross India had been turned down by Nehru last night. They said this enabled prior arrangements to be made for a 3,000-mile detour of the flights.

The U. S. airlift planes are flying French commandos from France to relieve the hard-pressed French garrison at beleaguered Dien Bien Phu in Indochina.

McCarthy Claims Army Action Is Improper

Stevens Testifies Aide Took Notes On Talk with Senator

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens said today that Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy privately vetoed a request by his chief counsel in Pvt. G. David Schine's behalf lest it be "misinterpreted."

Stevens said the Wisconsin Republican did so, reversing his own previous stand, in a telephone conversation with the secretary which was monitored by the Army.

The Army secretary said that in the monitored conversation on Nov. 7 McCarthy told him Schine was "one of the few things he had trouble with (Roy M. Cohn about."

He quoted McCarthy as saying in effect at that time that Cohn "thinks that Dave ought to be a general and operate from a penthouse on the Waldorf Astoria."

Stevens' testimony on this point set off a row at the Senate investigating subcommittee's televised hearings on the running feud between McCarthy and his counsel, Roy M. Cohn, and the Army.

Cohn requested furlough

The Army has accused McCarthy and Cohn of using "improper means" to get preferential treatment for Schine, former unpaid consultant of the subcommittee. Their efforts to get Schine a commission or a job as Stevens' special assistant failed, and Schine was drafted last Nov. 3.

After Schine's induction, Cohn requested a furlough for him so that he could assist in the subcommittee's investigation of alleged espionage at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., Stevens said.

The secretary said he offered to have Schine assigned to two weeks' temporary duty in New York. Cohn checked the offer with McCarthy and called back to say it was okay, Stevens said.

Stevens then testified about the monitored telephone conversation which he said took place Nov. 7. He said McCarthy asked him not to assign Schine to the subcommittee lest the act be "misinterpreted."

McCarthy leaped on the disclosure that his call had been monitored. He charged that such action was "improper, indecent, and illegal" without notifying the other party involved.

McCarthy added, however, if the Army had a verbatim transcript of the conversation it should be placed in the hearing record.

Stevens testified that an aide took notes on the conversation in line with regular procedures in the Army secretary's office.

John N. Welch, Army attorney, said the monitored transcript of "the conversation had been brought to the hearing under subpoena. He asked if the subcommittee vote to put it in the record was "illegal... improper... dishonest."

The subcommittee then decided to call Jack Lucas, who made the record, to testify at the afternoon session whether it was a verbatim report.

Suggested Week Ends Off

Stevens had testified earlier in detail about efforts by McCarthy and Cohn to get a commission or other privileges for Schine. But he said the senator's Nov. 7 telephone conversation "raised the question in my mind as to just how important Schine was to the subcommittee."

Stevens testified that, in the same conversation, McCarthy suggested that "a few weekends off for Schine might be arranged, perhaps for the purpose of taking care of Dave's girl friends."

Stevens also testified that Cohn, who is a close friend as well as former colleague of Schine, asked him to spare the draftee the rigors of basic army training. He refused to do so, Stevens said.

Ray H. Jenkins, special subcommittee counsel for the McCarthy Army hearing, then asked if Stevens had a record of the Nov. 7 conversation with McCarthy.

Army special counsel Joseph N. Welch interrupted to say that there was a legal question that must be solved.

He said the Army had brought the transcript in response to a subpoena from the subcommittee, but that he wanted a subcommittee vote to have it produced.

"We are dealing with the Federal Communications Act which puts certain restrictions on monitored telephone calls," he said.

Stevens also told how Cohn "declared war" on the Army.

Oct. 20, Stevens said, he flew to Ft. Monmouth for an inspection accompanied by McCarthy, Cohn, and others, including two other senators.

They visited various installations,

Indochina Loss Could Lead to War III: Nixon

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon warned Thursday night that, while the administration's policy is to avoid fighting in Indochina or anywhere else, the loss of that country to the Communists could "lead to the fall of all Asia and World War III."

Nixon told a Republican rally the Eisenhower administration is doing all it can "to keep American boys from fighting in Indochina or anywhere else in the world if we possibly can."

He stressed, however, that if our foreign policy should fail to prevent the fall of Indochina, "it may mean the fall of the rest of Asia which would lead to World War III."

The vice president referred only briefly to the stormy Washington hearings between Sen. Joseph McCarthy and the Army, saying they have created charges and counter charges and should not obscure a solid fact—that this administration has done and is doing a devastatingly effective job of destroying the Communist conspiracy in the United States," he said.

When Nixon was greeted by newsmen upon his arrival here Thursday, he confirmed that all of his recent speeches—including those in which he spoke of the war in Indochina—reflected the official policy of the Eisenhower administration.

He refused to say, however, whether a recent comment before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in which he said the United States might have to send troops to Indochina if French forces were withdrawn, had been cleared by the President.

"That was an off the record speech and I'm not going to comment on it," he said.

Mr. Dulles' Memo Pad

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Oppenheimer Hearing Assumes Cloak-and-Dagger Air; Two Key Witnesses Vouch For Atomic Scientist; Sen. Mundt Could Apply Criminal Code In McCarthy Hearing.

WASHINGTON. — The secret of the A-Bomb may have been carefully guarded at Los Alamos, but not more so than the present whereabouts of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, the man who presided over Los Alamos. Five Life magazine photographers and news-leuths have been scouring the area where Oppie is supposed to be hiding out, but so far not one fleeting, slithering glimpse of him.

All week the Oppenheimer loyalty hearing has been taking place in Washington, but where nobody knows. Neither the three-man loyalty board nor the doctor himself can be located.

Lloyd Garrison, attorney for the atomic scientist, is just as mysterious as his client. He shuns hotels, is hidden out in a private residence, goes occasionally to the law office of his partner, ex-Treasury Counsel Randolph Paul.
Photographers have finally hit on the strategy of waiting for him at Paul's office to tail him home.

However, though the Oppenheimer hearings are a better-kept secret than the hydrogen bomb, word has leaked out that the three-panel board has been giving Oppie a rough time. First, they raised Cain with him for releasing the text of his reply to Atomic Energy Commission charges — though it had been specified in writing that he had every right to do so. The White House also was irked at the release. So now they have demanded that Oppenheimer be like the proverbial brass monkeys — say nothing, do nothing, see nothing.

Two key witnesses at the hearing have been Gen. Leslie Groves, head of the entire Atomic Energy project; and Gen. Fred Osborn, U.
S. delegate to the UN Commission on Atomic Energy. Both were favorable to Oppenheimer. Osborn testified that when he was appointed to the UN Atomic Commission, Oppie warned him that the Russians were trying to steal the secret of the atom bomb and to be on his guard.

WASHINGTON PIPELINE

Pentagon reports persist that a deal is in the works to save face for Joe McCarthy. Roy Cohn, brilliant burbling counsel of the Mc-Carthy committee, would get the ax, also John G. Adams, counsel for the Army. . . . Adams' skirts are in the clear except on one thing. His sense of humor has a low boiling point. He'll wisecrack at the drop of a paper clip. And his wisecracks, when recorded on tapped telephone wires, don't come over as wisecracks. Some of them are going to come out in Senate hearings and may embarrass the Army.

WERE LAWS VIOLATED?

Roly-poly Senator Mundt of South Dakota has announced that the charges against the Army, Roy Cohn, and Senator McCarthy cover
"no acts of corruption punishable by law."

However, the genial gentleman from South Dakota did not study law at Carleton College. Like Dick Nixon, he majored in public speaking and is today president of the National Forensic League, editor of the Rostrom, and associate editor of the Speaker. And while Mundt is using his forensic talents in the tough job of presiding over the McCarthy probe, he should also retain a good legal expert to see how many laws Cohn, McCarthy and the Army may have violated.
If so, he will find that they may well have violated no fewer than 13 different statutes.

Visitors Invited To Scout Camp on Sunday Afternoons

Visitors to the Boy Scout Camp on Little Grassy Lake on Sunday afternoons will be met by Scout leaders who will show them the camp layout and the progress being made in developing the site.
William Howe, Carbondale, Camping and Activities chairman for the Egyptian Council said "We want everyone to have a chance to see the camp growing up and to develop an appreciation of the work involved in creating a camp which is fitted to the needs of our boys."

Letters have been sent to organizations inviting them to form a caravan and drive over to the camp. William Taylor, Carbondale, public relations chairman who announced the program, said
"We receive large numbers of inquiries from people who want to know what is really going on down at the camp. We want everyone to know that they are invited to see for themselves. While the camp is not yet complete we are proud of the accomplishment being made and feel that if everyone will come and see, that the completion of the camp will be assured. We particularly invite parents of boys who will one day be Scouts, and the boys themselves. We want those who have contributed to the camp development or those who are planning to contribute to see how their money is being translated into specific benefits for boys."

HOW TO GET THERE

The road to the Boy Scout camp follows the east shore of Little Grassy lake. Anyone crossing the lake dam going east and keeping to the right will wind up in the camp parking lot. For those not familiar with the Little Grassy Lake location, signs are on High-

Eisenhower Says U. S. Must Take Lead in Developing Genuine Understanding

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower said Thursday night that America must take the lead in developing the genuine understanding among the peoples of the world that will lead to an enduring peace. "Nowhere on this planet today is there an impenetrable fortress, a continent or island so distant that it can ignore all the outer world," he said. "If this is not to be the age of atomic hysteria and horror, we must make it the age of international understanding and cooperative peace."

"Even the most rabid Marxist, the most ruthless worshipper of force, will in moments of sanity admit that international understanding, however, like domestic unity, depends in large part — on the free, full flow of information and its balanced presentation."

The President spoke at the concluding event of the 68th annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association—the annual dinner of the ANPA Bureau of Advertising. He called on the newspaper publishers to provide the framework of world understanding and of domestic strength by giving all the facts in balance and in their official perspective. This also applies, he said, to magazines, radio, television, and the newsreels.

The President said he believed "most earnestly" that the press should give emphasis to the things that unite the American people equal to that which it gives to the things that divide them.

In what might have been a reference to the dispute between Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and top Army officials, he said: "If the day comes when personal conflicts are more significant than honest debate on great policy, then the flame of freedom will flicker low indeed."

Mr. Eisenhower said that "if proposed laws and policies are described as mere battle grounds on which individuals or parties seeking political power suffer defeat or achieve victory, then indeed is the American system distorted for us and for the world."

Mr. Eisenhower said three-quarters of all the world's people live under censorship and that vast numbers in many areas are illiterate. Into that censorship-illiteracy vacuum "pours the positive and poisonous propaganda of the Soviets" 24 hours a day.

To counter this, he called for greater efforts to spread the story of freedom throughout the world and for news not only about big political crises and official state-

Mrs. Harry Morris, 1318 South McKinley, had as guests over the week end her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Morris, Geneva, and daughter, Barbara, who is a sophomore at the University of Illinois. They also visited his brothers-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Hollie Stout and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Austin, and their families.

SIU Trustees Name New Instructors

The post of adjunct professor, created by the Southern Illinois university board of trustees at its last meeting, was awarded Thursday to two men employed by the U. S. Forest Service in Carbondale.

Both Richard D. Lane and Leon S. Munkler of the Central States Forest Experimental Station have been working closely with Southern on cooperative research projects. Their new ranks on the SIU faculty will make it possible for them to teach classes on special assignment.

Three new instructors were named by the trustees in a meeting held at Springfield, and Stewart C. Chandler, Carbondale, an entomologist of the Illinois State Natural History Survey, was appointed a research associate in the Division of Rural Studies.

The new instructors and the department to which they will be assigned are: Robert B. Forman of the staff of Florida State university, music; Jules Ramon DuBar, a former SIU faculty member who has recently completed graduate study, geography and geology; and William Edward Waska, formerly with Western Electric and the Hallieraters Co., technical and adult education.

The following were promoted from assistant to associate professors: Oliver Beinfuhr, geography and geology; Robert A. Harper, geography and geology; Paul Hunsinger, speech; Herman R. Lantz, sociology; Susie Ogden, business administration; and George K. Flochmann, philosophy. Ernest E. Brod, an instructor in education, was named assistant professor.

THE REMAINS OF ILLINOIS FURNACE, near Rosiclare in Hardin County, are evidence of a once-thriving iron industry in Southern Illinois. The furnace was operated from 1837 to 1883. (SIU News Photo)

IT HAPPENED IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS: An Early Illinois Industry

By JOHN W. ALLEN
Southern Illinois University

The last fires were pulled and the equipment removed from Illinois Furnace in 1883. Now 71 years later some piles of iron ore, broken chunks of limestone, and a few low mounds containing charcoal are found on a hilltop. The ruins of a blast furnace stand close against the steep side of the hill some 60 feet below, and bits of slag lie scattered about it. Large trees grow near the furnace, one seven or eight inches in diameter even growing on top of it.

All these help to tell the story of an industry established near Hog Thief Creek, about four miles north of Rosiclare in Hardin county in 1837, the same year that the county was formed. It was then an important industry of southern Illinois and one of the early iron furnaces of the Midwest. During the first 37 years after its building Illinois Furnace was in almost continuous operation. From 1874 to 1883 it was operated only at intervals.

Aged Workman Tells of Closing
Many records relating to the furnace were destroyed when the courthouse at Elizabethtown was burned in 1884. Enough remain, however, to tell much of its story. Also, one of the workmen, Joe Piland, now past 90 years old, who helped to dismantle the machinery, was able to contribute information concerning its closing.

The old furnace was being operated by Chalon Gard and Company of Indiana in 1839. By 1872 it had passed to the Illinois Furnace Company, a corporation chartered in Indiana on April 6 of that year. A. G. Cloud, later to become a prominent business man and banker in McLeansboro, was their bookkeeper at the furnace.

The iron ore used was obtained from deposits found in the nearby hills and the pits from which it was taken are still evident. Known as limonite, it was about 50 per cent metallic iron. Mining was done by various individuals and the ore was hauled to the hilltop just above the furnace in wagons. For this delivered ore the company paid $1.75 a ton.

Charcoal Burned
A number of men were also engaged in providing charcoal for use as fuel. This charcoal was burned at places convenient to the wood supply and then hauled to the furnace. When in full operation about 1800 bushels of charcoal were required daily. Those bringing charcoal received four cents a bushel for it.

When operating at capacity Illinois Furnace produced an average of nine tons of pig iron each day. During the Civil War this was a principal source of supply for iron used at the United States Naval Yards in Mound City.

The pig iron was hauled by wagon to shipping points on the Ohio river. Some of the iron "pigs" even today are found on farms over the country. Numbers of them were once found near the ford across Hog Thief Creek where tradition relates that the teamsters slyly dropped them to lighten their loads for an easier crossing.

Part of Foundation Remains Ruins of the old furnace are sufficient to show many of the details of its construction. It is approximately 32 feet high. The round core of the furnace in which the ore was melted is eight feet in diameter. It was built of fire brick, markings on some of which indicate they were made in Pittsburgh.

The fire brick core of the furnace was inclosed and strengthened by a sturdy limestone structure about 32 feet square at the base and sloping to a smaller size at the top. This protecting structure was badly damaged about 20 years ago when workmen blasted some of it away for use in building roads. Parts of masonry foundations and the large bolts used to anchor machinery in place are still there. Arched opening in the base of the furnace indicated the places from which the molten iron and slag flowed or into which the air blast entered. Power for operation of the furnace was supplied by steam engines.

Quite a number of men came to work at Illinois Furnace and a considerable village grew up across the roadway from the furnace. Since few of the natives possessed the skills necessary in the operation of an iron furnace, many of the workmen came from the regions where the iron industry had developed in America, some even from European countries.

A post office named Illinois Furnace was established on October 2, 1846, and Charles T. Gard was appointed postmaster. This village had the usual country store, tavern or boarding house, and the ever-present saloon. The sports and pastimes of the village typical of the time, were somewhat rough and included bouts with the Irish shillalah.

Wife's Scheme For Hubby Lands Both in Jail
CHICAGO — Vaughn Wedlake, 23, who said he "never argued with my wife," was in jail today because he didn't.

His wife, Mrs. Ruth Wedlake, 20, also was jailed.

Mrs. Wedlake said she didn't like Chicago's weather and preferred to live in California but her factory worker husband never quite made enough for the trip.

So she hatched a scheme whereby they could make the journey in style.

Wedlake told police his wife suggested he steal a woman's purse and with the identification she could secure a $500 signature loan. He said his wife was sure the plan would work because she had worked as a loan office clerk.

Wedlake said he wasn't exactly wild about the idea but went along anyway.

"I never argued with my wife," he said.

Wedlake told police he left the apartment and grabbed the purse of the first woman who walked by. It turned out to be Mrs. Gertrude Nelson, 43.

Within five minutes Wedlake was back in the couple's apartment with Mrs. Nelson's purse. Mrs. Nelson saw him enter the building and called police.

Officers arrested the Wedlakes less than 15 minutes after the purse was stolen.

Wedlake's only comment was that he didn't think "we'll be going to California for a while."

GOP Congressmen Win First Game in 7 Years from Demos

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Republicans, puffed out like pouter pigeons, were eyeing the New York Yankees today after their first baseball victory over the Democrats in seven years.

Swinging lustily behind the tight pitching of "Fireball" Glenn Davis (R-Wis.) and taking advantage of loose play afield, the GOP thumped its Democratic foes from the House 7-4 in the second annual sunshine congressional baseball game.

The last time the Republicans won, in games here and in Washington, was 1947.

The GOP jumped on the Democrats' long-time ace, Rep. Don Wheeler of Georgia, in the first inning, driving across three runs, and added four more in the third. Davis, a little wild at first, allowed the Democrats a pair of runs in the first but thereafter kept them under control with his "fast" ball. He even held off on his "change of pace" pitch until the fifth when South Carolina's John Riley made the last out.

"I had been waiting all night to dish up my change of pace but I never could get far ahead of the batter," said Davis. "But when I saw old John up there, I knew I had them."

Riley grumbled: "He never would have got me if I hadn't hit at that high ball."

Four members of each team won gold watches, donated by a local art dealer, for "extraordinary" play. One of them was the Democrats' Walter Rogers of Texas who raced after a pop fly in the third inning, yelling "mine, mine, mine" but fell on his face when he tripped over third base.

Eisenhower to Visit Birthplace Of Abraham Lincoln

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower flew today to Kentucky to visit Abraham Lincoln's birthplace.

Mr. Eisenhower also will speak at Transylvania College before resuming his Augusta, Ga., golfing vacation.

The President will speak informally at the scene of Lincoln's birth and place a wreath at his monument in Hodgenville, Ky.

Mr. Eisenhower took off at 8:59 a. m. EST in the presidential plane, the Columbine. He had returned to the White House Thursday night after interrupting his Augusta vacation to address the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. in New York.

The presidential plane was expected to arrive at Godman Air Force Base, Fort Knox, Ky., where Mr. Eisenhower will review a tank division. He then will motor to the Abraham Lincoln National Historic Park outside Hodgenville to visit the log cabin in which Lincoln was born, participate in a Boy Scout ceremony and make a brief speech.

Stevens also testified:

1. McCarthy asked him Sept. 16 to use Schine's "special qualifications" by giving him a commission to escape basic training. Stevens said he told Cohn that couldn't be done.

2. Oct. 2, with Schine's induction as a private a month away, Cohn asked Stevens to permit him to escape basic training. Stevens said he told Cohn that couldn't be done.

3. Oct. 14 Schine suggested to Stevens that the secretary make him a special assistant to hunt Communists. He said, according to Stevens, that such an assignment "would be more logical" than being drafted.

4. That he assured the McCarthy group frequently that he wanted to cooperate fully with it. Oct. 2, he said, Cohn complained of lack of cooperation at Ft. Monmouth. "Then and there," Stevens testified, he telephoned the commanding general, Maj. Gen. Kirke B. Layton, and ordered him to give the investigators "full cooperation."

5. Subsequent to Schine's induction, Stevens said he gave the draftee special leave privileges to permit him to wind up his work with the subcommittee.

Emphasized Need of Schine

He said Cohn called him Oct. 27 and said Schine would be drafted Nov. 3. Cohn suggested that "Schine be furloughed and assigned to New York," or that perhaps the Central Intelligence Agency could use him.

Stevens said he talked to CIA Director Allen W. Dulles, who turned down the idea of using Schine. Cohn "went back to the furlough business. I indicated that if necessary during this transition period... I would see if I could arrange two weeks temporary duty for him in New York."

McCarthy has said Schine had

Illinois Youth Take Over The Legislature

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Youth took over the chambers of the Illinois Legislature today to practice making laws.

Some 350 boys and girls from high schools across the state participated in the fifth annual Youth Legislature, sponsored by the YMCA.

The "senators" and "representatives" pondered 124 proposed laws. For two days, they will hold committee hearings, hear speeches, and deliberate on passage of laws just as their elders do.

The teenaged lawmakers signed pledges to maintain a strict decorum—in some senses even stricter than the Legislature itself.

Eating, drinking and smoking were prohibited on the floor. Even gum-chewing was prohibited. Many of the subjects of legislation were the same ones the elected Legislature debates—highway speed limits, redistricting the Legislature, narcotics problems, a new state court system.

But some of the ideas of the youthful lawmakers would be novel to the men who normally sit in the House and Senate.

Rep. Doty Rose and Sen. Kay Hansen, Kankakee, sponsored a bill to ban secret high school societies, sororities and fraternities.

Officers Elected
Athletic competition would be allowed among high school girls under a proposal by Reps. Diane Klopacz, Judy Valentine, Gertrude Bernstein and Arlene Harlib, Chicago.

Reps. Dave Ford and Jack Fishman, Alton, pushed a bill to provide overnight camping facilities at all state parks, with a fee of 50 cents per person per night.

The Ginger Tri-Hy-Y Club of Chicago's Hyde Park YMCA urged a law admitting high school students to movie theaters at half price.

Sen. J. Bruce Bradley, Decatur, brought in a bill to allow a right turn on the red light after a stop at stop-and-go lights.

Officers of the Youth Legislature were elected prior to the session.

vital information, necessary to wrap-up the subcommittee's report on its investigation of alleged espionage at the Army radar center, Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Stevens also told of a luncheon meeting Nov. 6 in his pentagon office, with McCarthy, Cohn and Francis P. Carr, subcommittee executive director.

Stevens said McCarthy emphasized the need for having Schine, who had been drafted only a few days previously, available to the subcommittee in preparation of its reports.

Stevens said McCarthy asked for a direct Army commission in Schine's behalf on Sept. 16, at the New York apartment of Schine's wealthy parents.

Governor is Don Carter, Chicago. Other officers are Edward Swartz, Streator, lieutenant governor; Homer Gardner, Decatur, House speaker; Martha Engle, Streator, Senate secretary; Judy Valentine, Chicago, House clerk; Carl Esslinger, Danville, Senate chaplain; Lloyd Cobb, Chicago, House chaplain; Bob Wood, Chicago, Senate sergeant-at-arms, and Lon Spencer, Chicago, House sergeant-at-arms.

Carroll Clark and W. T. Westbrook, students at the Harrisburg Township high school, are attending the Youth Government today and tomorrow at Springfield. Clark is a representative and Westbrook is a senator, director of mines and minerals and a member of the Governor's cabinet.

Goyamo, Arcaro Aboard, Wins Blue Grass Stakes

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Eddie Arcaro, the all-time champion Kentucky Derby jockey, has a great chance to score his sixth triumph in the "Run for the Roses" next week aboard Goyamo.

That was the consensus among Kentucky "hardboot" racing experts today in the wake of Goyamo's brilliant stretch run that paid off Thursday in a one-length, come-from-behind victory in the important Blue Grass stakes at Keeneland.

The way that Goyamo turned on the power to roar from fifth place at the head of the stretch to first at the finish line convinced the experts that he is definitely a threat for the slightly longer Derby.

Arcaro, turning in one of his typical flawless rides, kept Goyamo back off the early pace and didn't turn him loose to run until he came sweeping into the stretch. He flashed under the wire a length in front of second-place Hasseyampa and, as the experts were quick to note, was pulling away.

They say that if a horse has any run in him, Arcaro will find the way to get it out, and the experts think Thursday's race proved Arcaro has found "the combination" for Goyamo.

Goyamo races under the colors of the Woodvale Farm and is owned jointly by Royce G. Martin and Mrs. Alton Jones, who reaped $24,290 from his Blue Grass triumph. The fans who made him the post-time favorite with their bets collected $5.40, $3.80, and $3.40 across the board.

The race was marred by rough going in the stretch, which did not affect Goyamo's Black Metal finished third, a nose behind Hasseyampa and another nose ahead of Admiral Porter. But Black Metal, ridden by Tony Despirito, was disqualified and placed fourth for bumping Admiral Porter.

Ridgway Edges Equality, 1-0, In Mound Duel

One of the best high school baseball games played in this area during the current season developed yesterday afternoon on the new Equality diamond with the invading Ridgway Eagles edging their host rivals, the Cardinals, 1-0.

Gene Frohock and John Mills, of the Equality and Ridgway clubs respectively, staged a regular pitcher's duel through the tight seven inning struggle. Frohock was tagged for three hits while Mills gave up only two.

Both hurlers were very effective. Frohock fanned 14 and walked only one. Mills wiffed ten and gave up a lone walk.

Denny Drone tripled in the second stanza for Ridgway but could not score. Cletus Butler singled for Equality in the same inning but his mates were unable to bring him home.

Ridgway's lone score came in the fifth when John Abel doubled and Bob Naas singled him home. Teegarden got Equality's other hit in the fourth, a single without support.

In pacing Equality batters in the first and third innings, moundsmen Mills threw only seven balls to retire the side.

Height of the Rock of Gibraltar is almost 1,500 feet.

Could Enos Slaughter's departure from the Cardinals trace to his first post-war introduction to Ed die Stanky? When the balding hustler slid hard into second base and said to the then Giant batter, "So you're the little so-and-so who's been causing such a rumpus."

Leo Durocher, in a joshing match, patted his lean middle ("down to 175") and allowed as how he could still move around at short. "To the left?" we asked. "Yep," answered The Lip with political savvy, "but not too far."

Giant second sacker (and sacroiliac-er) Davey Williams confides to intimates his back still gives him twinges. Two veteran National League managers insist Henry Aaron of the Braves will be the greatest Negro slugger to reach the majors. But wonder why he isn't playing second since he can top any rivals at making the pivot.

Lightweight champ Paddy DeMarco, everything a pug's supposed to look like, got his shot at the title by trouncing Ralph Dupas of New Orleans. Yet Louisianans claim the fight almost wasn't sanctioned because over-the-hill DeMarco wasn't considered a fit opponent.

Big Bill Hegarty, the Washington Redskins tackle pursuing a heavyweight career, can be whipped into a fighting frenzy. By reminding him of the time he was so worked up before an amateur bout he roared across the ring at the bell, his opponent stepped nimbly aside, and the Villanova grad flew through the ropes like Antonio Rocca.

Coast clamor is why Charley Powell, another pro grinder turned pugilist, is facing odd odds. Same goes for San Jose State product Jack Scheberies.

A tee shot that almost tangled with trees on the par 5, dogleg 13th hole at Augusta showed the concern that made amateur Billy Patton the surprise of the Masters. "Play it safe," yelled one of the throng trailing him. "You didn't pay five bucks to see

Offer $25,000 Purse for Hogan-Snead Match

CHICAGO (AP)—George S. May, millionaire golf promoter, has offered a winner-take-all purse of $25,000 to see whether Sam Snead or Ben Hogan "is the better golfer."

May promoter of the so-called "World's" championship and "All-American" golf tournaments, said he had written Hogan and Snead advising them of the offer.

He said the golfers, if they accept, will play for the prize in his "World" tournament this August. Their scores would also be counted in the "World" meet which carries a $50,000 first prize.

His 1954 tourneys are putting up all time high for golf tournaments of $25,000 including the $50,000 first prize and a $50,000 contract to the "World" winner to appear in exhibitions.

Snead has played in both tournaments regularly but Hogan's last appearance was in 1951 when he reportedly received $10,000 appearance money.

BIG LEAGUE ROOKIES . . . No. 12

Pirates, with Six Rookies In Lineup, Including Pitcher, Beat Giants, 7-4

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

What manner of men are these new Pittsburgh Pirates?

Well, in the first place they're really boys, not men, and if you want to find out something about them, don't go to the Pirate roster—because a number of them are such greenhorns they weren't even listed earlier this spring.

Another thing—they like fresh air. No more of this living in the cellar for them, at least not for a while. Fifth place was their niche today and they could go higher.

And even though they don't terrorize the other clubs in the National league this season, they sure have the Giants scared to death.

It was a typical Pirate starting lineup that Manager Fred Haney sent on the field Thursday loaded with six rookies including pitcher George O'Donnell, who was making his first major league start. But were they scared? No, sir, they were three runs in the first inning, kayoed Giant pitcher Ruben Gomez with three more in the third, and coasted to a 7-4 victory.

O'Donnell held the Giants to 8 hits, stranded eight men on base, and would have escaped with only two runs scored against him had not rookie shortstop Gair Allie committed two errors in the eighth inning.

Hal Rice, one of the three veterans in the lineup, drilled a three run homer in the first inning, scoring rookie Dick Smith, who had walked and rookie Bob Skinner, who had singled. Skinner, who recently came out of military service and who never before played anything higher than Class D baseball, collected a pair of singles, a double and a triple for a perfect day at bat. Allie, before committing his errors, had connected for his first major league home run. Rookie second baseman Curtis Roberts drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single, continuing the timely hitting that he has delivered since he broke in at the start of the season—the first Negro ever to play for Pittsburgh. The sixth rookie in the lineup, Gail Henley, who once was in the Giant organization but never saw the Polo Grounds, delivered one hit and drew a walk.

Cells Cause Cracking

The crackling sound as wood burns is due to the presence of numerous small cells containing moisture. The heat forms steam, making small explosions which we hear as the familiar crackling.

The better golfer has "agitated sports fans for years," and he wants to know the answer.

May said that in event Snead or Hogan won the "World" meet, he could leave Tam O'Shanter Country Club with a check for $125,000, providing he accepted the exhibition offer.

If Snead and Hogan agree to the special match, May said he would pair them together for the four days of the tournament.

Snead won the All-American in 1946 and tied for the World title with Lloyd Mangrum in 1948. He subsequently lost the playoff.

Hogan placed second in the 1941 All-American, tied for second in 1945 and won the "World" title in 1951.

KILL WITH CARE

XXVII

The play puzzled Jim. Certainly he could see nothing in it which would make Margaret Hughes dislike it, not when it was a production of her son's brain. Nancy Duover had been fairly accurate in her description of the piece which had a prologue and three scenes. Yet as far as he could see at the moment, only the content, the dealing with magic and fairies, the miraculous granting of wishes could have had any connection with Eddie Stone.

At headquarters, Jim needed only a glance at Mark Richards' face to know his friend was beyond the boiling point with rage.

"I thought you were off your rocker, harping on the Hughes family. But the gun's gone, Jim."

"The automatic?"

"Yes. I sent it down here, remember. It got here all right, according to the man at the switchboard. It was put on my desk, wrapped and ready to send to the ballistic expert in Denver as soon as Pardon dug the slugs from Mansfield. The slugs came along all right. But the automatic disappeared."

"And?" Jim hoped his voice was completely noncommittal.

"No one has been in and out but police officers and Chief Hughes." "What does the chief say?" "That's what I want to hear. I'd just as soon have someone with me when I tackle him again. But there's one thing I've done for you, Jim. About Mansfield having a phone. He only used it for calling long distance. His stock broker."

Jim said, "It's a dial phone. How do they know he never called local numbers?" "They don't say he never did. But they do say his long distance bill was large, regularly. And paid promptly. I've talked to Atwood about his finances. Mansfield only kept a few hundred dollars in a checking account. He has several safe-deposit boxes though; and replenishes his account when it needs it. He made no large withdrawal recently, and has not visited his deposit boxes. Atwood doesn't know how Mansfield made out in his speculations, but he does say Mansfield's fortune was quite large the last he knew."

Richards led the way down the hall to the chief's office. It was very obvious to Jim that a great change had occurred. Mark Richards had never been one to kowtow to a superior, but before there had at least been a certain deference which was missing now.

"Tell us again, about the gun," Richards said.

"Nothing about it," Hughes said calmly. "I came in, yes. I went out for food, for cigars. If the gun is missing, it seems to me you are at fault for not taking proper steps to protect vital evidence."

"So you said," Mark admitted. He went on quickly. "One other little thing I've found out today. I understand you had a complete set of false teeth made a few months ago?"

Hughes tried to register surprise, but Jim Dunn thought it did not quite come off. "I did. But what on earth could my false teeth have to do with anything? Anything that is your business, I mean?"

"I was talking to your dentist a while ago," Mark said. "He told me of some of the things he missed while you were having your work done. Some of the things which were stolen from his office. You want to know what they were?"

"I suppose you'll insist on telling me."

Mark looked at a small piece of paper which held some notes. "I'll tell you what he missed. Some alginate Elastic Impression Cream, some Monomers Liquid and Polymer Powder. In case you don't know, polymerization is the action of those last two to form an acrylic.

Jim could tell now that Richards was in no danger of losing his head. Hughes too knew it, because he stood up.

"I have nothing more to say to you while you're in your present humor. I suggest you go and attend to your duties."

Mark Richards' anger was gone when he and Jim started driving toward the Mansfield house.

"The dentist is willing to swear it was young Tony Hughes who took the stuff. He came for his father, because Hughes didn't feel up to driving home. The dentist was doing some resurfacing or re-treading or whatever you call it, on Hughes' plates. He used this stuff in his lab, just across a hall from the room with the dentist's chair. The dentist saw young Hughes coming out of the lab, stuffing something in his pocket. And it isn't the first time the chief's son has picked up loose odds and ends."

Jim nodded. "I remember hearing. Did you show the dentist the fangs the monsters wore?"

"Yes. The pink stuff is the same material. Of course it's well known, used a lot. He couldn't swear that false work was made with his particular material."

Jim Dunn said, "So now we have quite a bit against the young genius. The ball point pen, initialed G. W., which he could have borrowed from his pal George West-rick. Found at the scene of the crime — or one scene at least. Found at the spot where the weapon was found. And by the way, anything on that?"

Mark said grimly, "I asked our chief about the pick. He swears he hasn't had one of them in his store for 15 or 20 years. But he might have had one lying where his boy could find it, especially since young Tony had such taking ways. And don't forget, Eddie Stone thought a lot of Tony."
